therefore, the study was opened to bias from both the participants and researchers.
william davis, who, since 2006, had been advising patients to supplement vitamin d to prevent progression of aortic valve disease (13)